HIDDEN AGENDA

Sweatin’ to the zombies

★ On the agenda: Zombie-Preparedness Fitness Class at Unicus Fitness, 233 N. Michigan Ave., 312-819-4466; unicusfitness.com

Check it out if you ... have ever wondered how you would fare in the zombie apocalypse, would like to join an exercise class that doesn’t take itself too seriously, think the prospect of fighting off the living dead is a great reason to get into shape.

The deets: From 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturdays through Dec. 5 (the class doesn’t meet Nov. 28), you can train for the rise of the living dead. The class features agility drills, in which participants must avoid cones and small hurdles, plus sprinting drills with quick direction changes as practice for fleeing zombies. In case you come face-to-face with the undead, you’ll also learn combat kickboxing and practice using weighted bats and sledgehammers to build strength and proper form for fighting. All fitness levels are welcome, and the workouts will be adjusted for individual abilities. Sessions are $15 each or $45 for four classes, and preregistration is required. Ten percent of the profits from the class go to local theater company Brain Surgeon Theater.

The payoff: Improving your body so you can protect your brains.

FOUL!

We're throwing a flag on a terrible week in sports—off the field

Tell-all books? Bonehead comments? Even an alleged offer of sex in exchange for baseball tickets? Yikes! It's like sportsland didn't want us to pay attention to the World Series or the start of the NBA season. In case you lost track, here is a roundup of some of the week's off-field misdeeds and shocking revelations.

Susan Finkelstein

Philadelphia
Phillies fan

The incident: Police arrested the 43-year-old grad student Tuesday and charged her with offering sex for tickets to the World Series.

The resolution: Finkelstein's lawyer said Wednesday that his client is merely "a nice lady overcome with Phillies fever," and he hopes to get the misdemeanor charge of promoting prostitution dismissed.

Larry Johnson

Kansas City Chiefs
running back

The incident: The two-time Pro Bowler used a gay slur during a Twitter exchange Sunday, then verbally Monday as he brushed off reporters who asked him about it.

The resolution: Johnson apologized through a spokesman Tuesday, and the Chiefs told him he would not be allowed to practice with the team or participate in team activities pending an investigation.

Steve Phillips

ESPN baseball commentator

The incident: The "Baseball Tonight" pundit and former New York Mets general manager admitted having an affair with a 22-year-old production assistant.

The resolution: The network fired Phillips on Sunday, and a representative said Phillips was entering a treatment facility.

Tim Donaghy

Former NBA referee

The incident: The ex-ref, who is in prison for a probation violation after his conviction on federal wire fraud charges, planned a tell-all book called "Blowing the Whistle:

The Culture of Fraud in the NBA."

The resolution: The publisher chose to cancel the book out of "concerns over potential liability," ESPN reported Wednesday.

Bob Griese

ESPN college football commentator

The incident: While calling a game last week, Griese made a racially ridiculous remark about Colombian NASCAR driver Juan Pablo Montoya and a taco.

The resolution: Griese twice apologized on the air, and ESPN suspended him from broadcasting this weekend.

Andre Agassi

Retired tennis professional

The incident: Excerpts of Agassi's upcoming book, "Open: An Autobiography," published Wednesday by Sports Illustrated and the Times of London contain graphic depictions of his use of crystal meth.

The resolution: Agassi's publishing company has set up a "60 Minutes" appearance on Nov. 8, the day before the book's scheduled release.

That was the retirement journey for United Airlines' last Boeing 737. The flight, UA 737, departed before dawn Wednesday from Washington Dulles International Airport and touched down at every one of United's hubs as it made its way to the carrier's maintenance base in San Francisco. Mechanics will strip down the plane and prepare it for its final journey to the central California desert, where it will be parked.

Pumpkins give us food, drink and fun—what's not to love?

By Chelsea Schneider | FOR REDEYE

Joe Cutaia despises pumpkins. He hates their look, their flavor and the way their mutilated jack-o'-lantern offspring dominate Halloween, one of his favorite holidays. When his spa recently offered a pumpkin seed exfoliation special, Cutaia snubbed the seeds and opted for a traditional pedicure.

"Why can't they use pumice stone like they do the other eight months of the year," the 22-year-old Lakeview resident grumbled to RedEye. "[Pumpkins] are ubiquitous. They are everywhere. I was asking my mom the other day, 'Why are pumpkins in everything—coffee, martinis, at the spa, Italian food?'"

That's not all. RedEye also has spotted the mighty, orange fruit—yep, it's a fruit rich in vitamin A—serving as the weight in a workout, being tossed for sport and getting fired from a cannon. With cred like that, pumpkins just might have a claim as the most badass piece of produce on the farm.

In Lincoln Park, McGees Tavern & Grille celebrates pumpkins by hollowing out 200 gourds each year for customers to carve, then puts them on display in front of the bar.

"All the managers are up to their elbows in pumpkin guts," bartender Jen Pellant told RedEye as the tavern prepped for Halloween.

In that pro-pumpkin spirit, RedEye explores five ways we love to use—and, let's face it, sometimes abuse—autumn's dominant gourd. CHELSEA SCHNEIDER IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

PUMPKIN PARADISE

Illinois is the greatest pumpkin-producing state, according to U.S. Census Data. Of the 1 billion pounds of pumpkins harvested last year in the U.S., the Land of Lincoln accounted for 496 million pounds.

To style

You know not to wear white after Labor Day. Now here is some advice for decorating your home: Do NOT use pumpkins after Thanksgiving.

"Who eats pumpkin pie past Thanksgiving?" said interior designer Julia Edelmann of Buckingham Interiors + Design in Wilmette. "I would say the Friday after Thanksgiving is when you need to get your ornaments out."

So that leaves you with three more weeks to go gourd wild. Put them in a clean line on the mantle or in the middle of the dinner table, Edelmann suggested.

"You want to have something that has impact," she said. "I would do more rather than less, and I would always mix sizes."

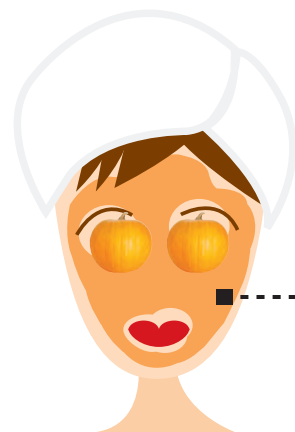

To beautify

Behold the healing power of the pumpkin! Used in a facial mask, the gourd hydrates, smoothes and brightens skin, said Dayna DeLaurentis, owner of Urban Spa Chic in the West Loop. "It's a nice treatment for after the summer," she said.

At the Skin Wellness Center of Chicago in the Loop, Dr. Brooke Jackson said the pumpkin peel is high in vitamin C and beta carotene—and also offers a soothing scent for folks who need to relax.

"There are certain smells that just evoke memories," Jackson said. "With pumpkins, it's Thanksgiving and Halloween. There's just a warmth and coziness."

By the numbers

What does a 1,725-pound gourd get you? Possibly a Guinness-certified world title. An Ohio teacher took first place in the Ohio Valley Giant Pumpkin Growers competition in early October with her great garden whale, toppling the previous record of 1,689 pounds, The Associated Press reported. If you think that's impressive, check out these pumpkin statistics. c.s.

1621

The year pumpkin custard flavored with maple syrup and spices baked in pumpkin shells debuted at the first Thanksgiving, according to canned pumpkin pie mix manufacturer Libby's. The treat is said to be pumpkin pie's ancestor.

2,020 lbs.

The largest pumpkin pie ever baked, according to Guinness World Records. The pie measured more than 12 feet long and was made by New Bremen Giant Pumpkin Growers in Ohio in October 2005.

307

The population of Pumpkin Bend, Ark., according to 2008 U.S. Census data.

To launch

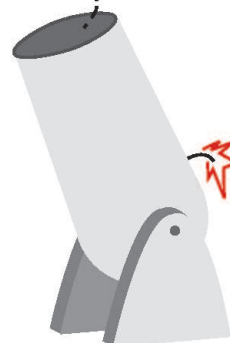

Forget birds or planes. You're more likely to see pumpkins sailing across the sky at Bengtson's Pumpkin Farm in Homer Glen, about 30 miles southeast of Chicago.

"Pumpkins just represent fun," said Dave Bengtson, the farm's owner, who fires the gourds thousands of feet with his custom air cannon—and sometimes launches them a more modest distance with a catapult. Bengtson's brother was inspired to build the cannon in 2005 after a trip to the World Championship Punkin Chunkin competition in Bridgeville, Del., where some contraptions have been engineered to catapult a pumpkin as far as a mile.

Which begs the question: Why would anyone put so much effort into something as seemingly mindless as flinging pumpkins?

"It's an opportunity to spend a large amount of time in the fresh air and a farm field doing something as utterly ridiculous as building a machine to throw an 8- to 10-pound pumpkin as far as you can," Punkin Chunkin spokesman Frank Shade told RedEye.

Enough said.

To imbibe

Bar manager Brenda Matias was enjoying the flavor and texture of a pumpkin bisque last year when a thought occurred to her: How would the creamy sweetness taste in a cocktail?

That's how she came to create her pumpkin pie martini for The Bar at the InterContinental hotel on the Magnificent Mile (recipe at right).

"It's like you are having a pumpkin pie," Matias said, adding that it's best as an after-dinner drink.

The secret to the cocktail is a pumpkin puree, which she makes from scratch with a dash of maple syrup for taste.

The Tilted Kilt in the Loop makes its pumpkin pie martini with vanilla vodka and a spiced pumpkin liqueur—and takes the concept further by topping it off with whipped cream and graham crackers.

"It's more of a thick, milky type of martini," said bartender Melissa Cortese. "Because it's orange, it looks almost like a pumpkin."

To savor

Terry Lynch once slurped baby eel stew out of a steamed Chinese pumpkin. The verdict? "It was awesome," raved the chef at Mon Ami Gabi in Lincoln Park.

A bit of a pumpkin fan, Lynch prepared four pumpkin-inspired dishes earlier this month at the French bistro for a Pumpkin Festival special. There was pumpkin, ginger and apple relish to start. Then roasted pumpkin and garlic soup, followed by bacon-wrapped halibut with pumpkin, white bean and tomato stew. And for dessert: pumpkin ice cream, of course. (What, you expected pumpkin-paired eels?)

"Pumpkin doesn't get much credit for how versatile it is," Lynch said.

PUMPKIN PIE MARTINI

Ingredients

1½ ounces vodka (Matias recommends Absolut Vanilla)
1 ounce creme de cacao
½ ounce heavy cream
1 ounce homemade pumpkin puree
Whipped cream as garnish

Directions

- » For the pumpkin puree, split a small pumpkin in half and seed it. Remove the stringy fibers by scraping the insides with a metal spoon. Place the two halves cut-side down in a roasting pan along with cup of water. Bake the pumpkin at 350 degrees until meltingly tender, about 90 minutes. Scoop the flesh out of each pumpkin half.
- » Puree in a food processor fitted with a metal chopping blade, add one cup of maple syrup.
- » Pour all ingredients into a cocktail shaker filled with ice. Shake and strain into a chilled martini glass, rimmed with fresh whipped cream.

HALLOWEEN CHOCOLATE MARTINI

Ingredients

2 ounces Veev Acai Spirit
1 ounce Godiva Dark Liqueur
1 ounce homemade pumpkin puree
Chocolate syrup for garnish

Directions

- » Put all ingredients into a cocktail shaker filled with ice and shake vigorously.
- » Serve in a cocktail glass decorated with chocolate syrup.

NUTTY PUMPKIN MARTINI

Ingredients

3 ounces Frangelico hazelnut liqueur
1 ounce half and half
1 ounce homemade pumpkin puree
Cinnamon sugar for garnish

Directions

- » Put all ingredients into a cocktail shaker filled with ice and shake vigorously.
- » Serve in a cocktail glass rimmed with cinnamon sugar.

THEME IT

Your Halloween costume 'Hoods: Old Town, River North, West Loop

Still haven't pinned down your costume and don't like the looks of the sketchy George Bush mask at the totally ravaged costume emporium? Don't sweat it; just pick a bar party and go with the theme. Get yourself a set of angel wings or devil horns for the Saints and Sinners Party ($30) at Eivissa (1531 N. Wells St. 312-654-9500), which includes an 11:30 p.m. costume contest, plus tunes, tapas and sangria. Bust out your pair of joke platforms for the That '70s Night party (no cover) at Union Park (228 S. Racine Ave. 312-237-6635) and buy into a $25 drink package of cocktails and Bud drafts from 7-10 p.m. Want something even easier? All you need is a friend, a couple of blazers and a killer head bob to fit in at the A Night at the Roxbury party at Manor (642 N. Clark St. 312-475-1390), featuring a performance by Montell Jordan ("This is How We Do It"). And if you're really stuck, reprise your flapper/zoot suit outfit from a few years ago and attend the Speakeasy Halloween Party (no cover; RSVP: info@crimsonchicago.com) at Crimson Lounge (333 N. Dearborn St. Hotel Sax, 312-923-2453) or throw on some scary makeup and head to the House of Horrors ($20) at Enclave (220 W. Chicago Ave. 312-654-0234).

By Lisa Balde

"Organic" isn't a word you hear a lot in Bridgeport, where marinara roots run deep. So when brothers Omar and Christian Solis decided to open an organic-minded breakfast and lunch nook a few blocks from U.S. Cellular Field, they knew they had some persuading to do.

And persuade they did, not only luring folks to test their menu of brunch staples and entrees with Latin twists, but also getting them to return. Two months after Nana's opening, the dining room is still packed.

Their secret? Focusing on organic as a concept—not a gimmick.

The bright little restaurant with wide windows and white wainscoting stands out in an area starved for good brunch options. A centrally placed coffee bar offers Metropolis coffees and tea ($1.65-$3.85) plus cups of joe to go, giving the place a coffeehouse vibe. The menu keeps the theme with mostly organic ingredients while aiming to please the neighborhood with comfort-food flavors and just-filling-enough portions.

All the brunch items you'd expect are on the menu, from buttermilk pancakes ($7) and french toast ($8) to oatmeal

($5) and a breakfast burrito ($8) filled with scrambled eggs, chorizo, bell peppers and jack cheese.

But the standouts are the dishes unique to Nana.

The Nanadict ($10) shakes up eggs Benedict, offering a pupusa (corn flatbread stuffed with cheese) topped with crumbled mild chorizo, a poached egg and poblano sauce. Not to be outdone are the baked chilaquiles ($9), which swap out the usual mess of tortilla chips for a square of tortilla-jack cheese casserole served with poblano sauce and a pool of black beans best soaked up by casserole bites.

BARRY BRECHEISEN
FOR METROMIX

Skip the two skillet ($10), which are just OK compared with Nana's signature dishes, but try the mascarpone-stuffed french toast ($10) if you want a super-sweet breakfast. If you're vegetarian, look no further than the tofu scramble ($10) made with diced tofu, onions, bell peppers and broccoli and served with beans and tortillas.

We admit our eyes glazed over a little when we discovered diet cola wasn't on the menu (try six flavors of organic soda, $2.50 each, instead), but we didn't expect the Solis brothers to keep their organic concept totally secret. And they don't need to. So far, they're easing Bridgeport in nicely.

Los Angeles Times

When it came to making movies quickly and cheaply, it was hard to beat Roger Corman.

Corman started directing films in 1955 and, during his peak, could turn out seven a year. A true auteur of "B" movies, his films featured offbeat characters, dark humor, social commentary and a savvy use of special effects and sets.

With its low-budget, fast-paced parameters, it's no wonder that Corman jumped at the chance to produce "Splatter," a three-part interactive horror Web series for Netflix that allows viewers to vote on which characters they want to see killed off in subsequent installments.

And you don't have to be a Netflix subscriber to catch "Splatter": It started streaming Thursday for free at netflix.com/splatter.

Viewers will be able to cast their votes

WEB SERIES

Splatter

Free at netflix.com/splatter on the fate of two characters for Friday's episode. After that installment, they again can choose who meets their maker on the Nov. 13 finale.

"The audience becomes part of the screenwriting team," Corman says.

Shot in eight days on digital video at the evocative Hollywood Castle mansion, the series was directed by Joe Dante ("Gremlins"), who cut his teeth editing trailers and eventually directing movies ("Piranha") for Corman in the 1970s.

Another Corman/Dante veteran, Corey Feldman ("Gremlins," "The Lost Boys"), plays Johnny Splatter, a goth-rock star who kills himself in the opener. Over three 8- to 10-minute episodes, Splatter's five friends get more than they bargained for when they arrive at his mansion for a reading of the will. Only one will survive the night.

Available now

The six-hour IFC docu-series charts the rise, split and legacy of the lunatic six-man sketch/animation troupe behind TV's "Monty Python's Flying Circus" and the movies "Monty Python and the Holy Grail" and "The Life of Brian." It's a chronological profile that's detailed enough for Pythonophiles, but maybe too detailed for others. A quibbler could wish for more clips and fewer talking heads influenced by the comic insanity. But the 40-years-later comments from the five living Pythons are priceless. My Life Outside the Ring

Hulk Hogan

Hulk Hogan provides a few fascinating stories from the wrestling mat. He describes how he shredded his back muscles when he bodyslammed Andre the Giant in Wrestlemania, and how the Undertaker administered a Tombstone pile-driver that made Hogan's upper body go numb. Those intriguing vignettes are infrequent, but that's OK. As it turns out, the stories of his personal life are equally intriguing. Hogan comes across as a likable person, the same larger-than-life character he portrayed in the ring. Even through the written word, Hogan makes it easy to remember why Hulkamania ran wild for so many years. DINESH RAMDE, AP

If you want to know what indie rock is up to in 2009—or if someone asks you—play "Walkabout," the first single and one of the standout tracks from "Logos," Atlas Sound's sophomore album. Featuring Noah Lennox of Animal Collective and Panda Bear fame, "Walkabout" is a perfect pop song twisted and turned weird, illustrating songwriter Bradford Cox's dueling gifts for sunny melodies and disorienting breakdowns. But "Walkabout" is only a blip on "Logos," where the lights never shine too brightly but flicker a lot. MICHAEL POLLOCK, THE PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER

Bowie: A Biography

Marc Spitz

Marc Spitz, a music journalist, clearly gets David Bowie, and this is an unapologetic fan-boy biography. He's good at analyzing what Bowie accomplished, why it matters and what was likely influencing him at the time. He has insightful things to say about landmark Bowie songs "Life on Mars?" and "Heroes." But be warned: Spitz isn't big on narrative and crafting scenes. And he has the self-indulgent habit of interrupting Bowie's story with vignettes about HIS story of being a Bowie fan. Who cares? The result is a book at turns interesting and irritating that reads like a long music magazine article. MICHAEL HILL, AP

Russian Roulette

Rihanna

Rihanna returns with "Russian Roulette," an ominous ballad that suggests the emotional toll of her relationship with Chris Brown has left her in a dark place. Sure, she may be playing a role in the song, but outlining the possibilities of shooting or being shot is harrowing enough without the sound effects of chambers clicking and gunshots ringing out. "Russian Roulette" is a boundary-pusher that sounds more like a cry for help with repeated listening. GLENN GAMBOA, NEWSDAY

The home where former President Bill Clinton spent his earliest years in Hope, Ark.

Home museum offers peek at Clinton's youth

Associated Press

HOPE, Ark. The Bill Clinton First Home Museum soon will be a part of the National Park system, a designation that will give the modest structure on a busy street more visibility as a tourist destination.

The two-story, wood-frame house on Hervey Street in Hope, Ark., was where Clinton lived from his birth in 1946 at Julia Chester Hospital until age 4. The home was occupied until it was acquired by the Clinton Birthplace Foundation during Clinton's presidency.

The dwelling, which opened as a museum in 1997, conveys a lived-in feeling and is furnished with items that date to the late 1940s when Clinton lived there. A separate visitors center with a gift shop was added later.

The South Hervey Street home served as the center of Clinton's family life for his first 10 years. After moving, Clinton spent summers there, visited on weekends and attended other family gatherings there until his grandfather, Eldridge Cassidy, died in 1956.

The one original piece of furniture from Clinton's time in the house is the living room couch. While visitors are not permitted to touch or sit on the furniture, the home has no glass partitions or roped-off areas, thus preserving the ambiance of a private home.

Museum director Martha Berryman says the people around Clinton provided him with his first notions of "social justice," a theme he carried through his political life and into his post-presidential work.

Displays include pictures of grandfather Cassidy's store, where he served white and black customers, an uncommon practice in Hope in those days. Cassidy was known to extend credit during hard times, sometimes forgive debts or slip extra food into a family's order.

"This is not lost on a little child with wide eyes and big ears," Berryman said.

Berryman produced a recent find, a snapshot of Clinton as a boy standing in front of the house. The white paint on the house is peeling.

"[Eldridge Cassidy] couldn't afford to paint his house, but he could afford to let families have free food," Berryman said.

Berryman says she regularly straightens out myths—including misperceptions that the family lived in poverty, that Clinton was born in the house, and that his father abandoned him. The future president's father, William Jefferson Blythe II, died in a traffic crash a few months before his son was born.

Clinton said in his autobiography, "My Life," that the South Hervey Street home "certainly is the place I associate with awakening to life" and that it "still holds deep memories."

21 AND
A WAKEUP

'Wakeup' plays like a bad dream

Caitlin Murphy (Amy Acker, who can't even convincingly knock items off a shelf in anger) is one of the last enlisted Americans in Vietnam toward the end of the war. After the sudden death of her best friend (J.C. Chasez)—well, after going out drinking and having sex, without any residual sadness about the tragedy—Caitlin embarks on a covert mission with her reporter boyfriend. Despite the fact that Caitlin is one of the only qualified nurses her unit's got.

The buzz: This low-budget drama (the first American movie allowed by the communist government to be filmed in Vietnam) has the guts to open with onscreen titles informing us, "This is the way it was." That either means writer-director Chris McIntyre knows he's got an authoritative product on his hands or he's terribly, earnestly, hilariously wrong. Regardless, he does have one of the most random casts of the decade, thus likely becoming the first war film to mix an Oscar winner (Faye Dunaway), a largely forgotten TV star (Danica McKel-lar), an assortment of haphazard familiar faces (Ed Begley Jr., Ben Vereen, Wes Studi) and a former boy band second banana (*NSync's Chasez).

The verdict: I've seen better acting by hungry animals in dog food commercials. Actually, between the performances, the '70s adult film lighting, the horribly shot partying and the cheap music, "21 and a Wakeup" suggests war is less likely to break out than porn. (This might be what resulted if late-night Cinemax producers tried to make "Rambo.") Many scenes jump in after action already has happened, and there's no sense of what's going on outside this location other than the occasional explosion. Rather, characters mostly drink, joke around and have sex, then complain about how miserable it is to be there after having to treat patients. In this unintentionally hysterical piece of cult fave-level rubbish, Vietnam actually looks pretty fun, if all those injuries didn't keep interrupting the military's good time. MATT PAIS IS THE METROMIX MOVIES PRODUCER.

DON'T KNOW ABOUT THIS...

A surfer once sued another surfer for "stealing his wave." The case was thrown out because the court was unable to put a price on "pain and suffering" endured by the surfer watching someone else ride "his" wave.

Now that is how you reward faithful homecoming fans. Trailing by 25 points in the first half, Northwestern rallied to beat Indiana 29-28 last week at Ryan Field in Evanston, recording the biggest comeback in program history. "It was not a Picasso, but we'll take it," coach Pat Fitzgerald said after the game.

Close finishes have been a recurring theme for the Wildcats (5-3, 2-2 Big Ten), who host No. 12 Penn State at 3:30 p.m. Saturday in a game to be broadcast on ESPN. RedEye looks back at some of Northwestern's white-knuckle games this season.

Wildcats 27, Eastern Michigan 24

Sept. 12 at Evanston

Big 'Cat: Stefan Demos, kicker, who booted the winning 49-yard field goal with 6 seconds left.

What it meant: The Wildcats were 2-0 and had a pretty good kicker, whom they just might need in a pinch again this season.

Syracuse 37, Wildcats 34

Sept. 19 at Syracuse, N.Y.

Big 'Cat: Mike Kafka, quarterback, who set school records for consecutive completed passes (16) and completion percentage (83.3).

What it meant: The season's first loss would send Northwestern into Big Ten play at 2-1.

Wildcats 27, Purdue 21

Oct. 3 at West Lafayette, Ind.

Big 'Cat: Brad Phillips, safety, who forced two second-half fumbles.

What it meant: It was a solid conference win that looked even better two weeks later, when the Boilermakers upset Ohio State.

Wildcats 29, Indiana 28

Oct. 24 at Evanston

Big 'Cat: Demos, who tallied another game-winning kick, this one from 19 yards out with 21 seconds left.

What it meant: Northwestern needs only one win in its final four games to become eligible for a bowl game.

Big Ten football is in the homestretch. Who's your conference champion?

Penn State—a retch, err, stretch, I know.

I would say Iowa but that just sounds wrong.

Damn you, Illinois. Just once, I'd like to say it's you!

Iowa, because the state deserves more than cornfields and the World's Largest Truckstop.

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redye.chicago.com/puzzles.

SCRABBLE

Make a 2- to 7-letter word from the letters in each row. Add points of each word, using scoring directions at right. Finally, 7-letter words get a 50-point bonus. "Blanks" used as any letter have no point value. All the words are in the Official Scrabble Players Dictionary, 3rd Edition. Find the answer at redye.chicago.com/puzzles.

Celebs incognito

With all the sci-fi-tinged music videos and corseted period dramas out there, we could understand if some celebs didn't want to dress up for Halloween. But then again, how could a star pass up an opportunity to draw attention?

Scour the Web and you'll find tons of pics of starlets like Paris Hilton and Brittany Murphy dressed in itty-bitty costumes even more outrageous than their usual outfits—but here's a peek into some more clever Halloween get-ups. ARIEL ALEXOVICH, REDEYE

Taylor Swift

Preferring wacky costumes to sexy ones, Swift told MTV she and a friend both dressed as "hard-core" Chewbaccas last year. "There was lots of Chewbacca noises being made," she said. "People were like, 'You're an abominable snowman.' I'm like, 'It's Chewbacca!'"

Queen Latifah

"My first Halloween, I dressed up as Casper the Friendly Ghost—yeah, I know I'm dating myself," she told AOL.

Heidi Klum

"My husband surprised me a few years ago at my Halloween party by 'raiding' the place and restoring order. There's something about a man in a uniform. To be really in character, you have to get all the fun knickknacks a cop has. Handcuffs are super important for that!" Klum told msn.com about Seal's police officer costume.

Diddy

Sean Combs fed his God complex last Halloween when he dressed up as the pope. "I got it from a secondhand costume store in Los Angeles," he told New York magazine.

Katy Perry

"I had a cake that was a cadaver and its guts were everywhere, and I arrived in a hearse!" Perry told In Style about her party where she dressed as the late Queen frontman Freddie Mercury.

Reese Witherspoon

Reese once showed up to an October party dressed as Sally from "The Nightmare Before Christmas." Um, except it wasn't a costume party. "The host goes, 'Um, Bono wants to meet you, would you like to say hi?'" Reese recalled, cringing, on "Ellen." "And I said, 'Actually, no, I'm going to pass.'"

Audrina Patridge

Of course Audrina would go to frequent "Hills" hangout Les Deux for Halloween. Last year she dressed as "Like a Virgin"-era Madonna because "I wanted to be something totally different," she told Us Weekly.

Where's Gaga?

What outrageous outfit will Lady Gaga rock for Halloween? (Drumroll, please!) None, the singer told Z-100 radio station in New York earlier this week, according to mtv.com.

Instead, the "Poker Face" crooner just might turn the holiday into a game.

"I'm pretty excited about going out and not dressing up, because I heard that a lot of people are dressing like me," she said, according to the site.

"I should do some kind of, like, 'Where's Waldo?' competition? Like 'Where's Gaga?'"

For people who want to channel Gaga this weekend, she offered this advice: "Wigs, purple shampoo and high heels. Lots of latex."

"My girlfriend grabbed me and was like, 'Someone is in the house!' This is when you get into defend-your-life mode. ... Then we realized it was just the ice maker and we calmed down."

"PARANORMAL ACTIVITY" DIRECTOR OREN PELI TO USA TODAY
ABOUT THE INSPIRATION FOR HIS HIT MOVIE

Lutz

Greene

Academy dropout

Neil Patrick Harris, please pick up the awards host courtesy phone. Hugh Jackman will not return as host of the Academy Awards, variety.com reports. The Australian actor did not want to host for two consecutive years and has not ruled out a later return to the Oscars, the site reports. No word on who will replace Jackman, though we have some ideas if anyone's asking.

Work it, Eddie!

Runway alert! "America's Next Top Model" is planning a special guest for its Nov. 18 finale, eonline.com reports. Eddie Murphy (left) will sit in with host Tyra Banks and Co., though he won't be serving as a guest judge. Instead, he'll be there to support his daughter, Bria Murphy, who will appear with the finalists.

Got Lambert?

Just in time for Halloween zombie dances, Adam Lambert released the first single off of his upcoming album, "For Your Entertainment," on Friday. The title track is "dance music with a glam-rock shuffle beat," the "American Idol" runner-up said on Ryan Seacrest's radio show, according to people.com. The song is streaming at adamofficial.com.

Back to the future

Charlize Theron (right) will star in the fourth installment of the futuristic "Mad Max" franchise, according to variety.com. Starring opposite Theron in "Mad Max: Fury Road" will be British actor Tom Hardy, not Mel Gibson. The movie is scheduled to start filming next August in Australia, Variety reports.
